

New Courses In Cal-Tech War Training Program

The spring war training program of California Institute of Technology will get under way next month with a variety of new courses designed for war workers, both men and women. These are all tuition-free evening classes sponsored by the United States Office of Education and will be conducted in Los Angeles and Pasadena. Supplemental gas ration allowances will be approved by the institute, subject to approval by the student's local board.

Included in the March courses, which are open to both men and women high school graduates, are aircraft descriptive geometry, aircraft vibration and flutter analysis, introduction to plastics, plastic practice and workshop, tool engineering, motion and time study, advanced production control and advanced plastic engineering.

Track Practice Starts at THS; Outlook Good

By BOB WEST

Practice for the coming track and field season at Torrance high school was started on Monday of this week.

With most of the track team returning, and a large number of good looking prospects, Tartar chances for a successful track season and a possible championship are good.

Returning lettermen are Lloyd Warthan (who took first in the 440 yard grind in the Marine league finals last year, and will probably be an important cog in our track machine this year), Gene Holloman, Bill Shanon, Ted Long, Gerald, Goddard, Dick Honrath, Gordie Smith, Frank Dominguez and Weir Henderson, who are all threats to the opposition.

Of the novices, there is Gene Thorsen, who comes to us by way of Jacksonville, Fla., and Cecal Carlson who will try at putting the shot.

Some of the other hopefuls are, Ray Brady, Paul Mitchell, Gilbert Armstrong, Charles Wringle, Johnny Huddlemyer, Ralph Pegors, and Jim Crawford. This list of lettermen and novices is not complete due to the fact that some will be added and others dropped.

On the whole, the 1945 outlook is bright, it was said.

S-Sgt. Pedro Pina Tells Experiences In English College

A recent letter from Staff Sgt. Pedro R. Pina tells of his experiences in England, including visits to institutions of higher learning—and compares English collegiate customs with those glorified by American students of higher education. He states: "Last week I visited an English university, headed straight for the medical college, and had a very nostalgic time, going thru the labs and visiting the libraries. The students are very young, and the medical students particularly are very enthusiastic about their studies. The professor of anatomy was very kind, and was particularly interested in learning a little of our system of medical teaching, and invited me to drop in at any time that I was in this town. They use all the same texts that we use, and many of our journals are used in the libraries to keep them up on current methods and discoveries. These students wear their gowns, their correct name escapes me at the moment but I'm sure you know the type I mean. Each college has its distinctive colors, which its students use as mufflers, ties, etc., and its coat of arms. They make colorful patterns, wheezing by on bikes—mufflers and gowns rippling in the breeze. One of the students invited me to his room, and it was really a student's dream, with a comfortable fire, cozy furniture and the old, old traditions of the university. Must close now, so with best wishes, I remain, "Sincerely, "PEDRO."

Butter and sugar will "cream" much faster if a little hot milk is added during the creaming process.

REMOVES STALENESS

To sweeten a coffee pot made of metal other than aluminum substitute a tablespoon of soda for coffee, add water and then make believe they're brewing coffee. Rinse thoroughly with hot water after this brew has been emptied from the pot. This removes any trace of staleness.
